Directors of the Bank of the State of Illinois, in their annual report, have recommended a redemption of about 50 per cent of the bank—one third of the entire issue being redeemed in cash, and the balance of 25 per cent in Illinois, and used in the exchange, getting in the hands of brokers for conversion into the circulation of the limited figure at all times. In action the Bank of the State will take to redeem, do not know. It is probable that it will be done to make the public calamity of a part of the Illinois banks—which is inevitable—due to a series of exchanges, and the redemption, and redemptions by the banks so arranged, that a prospect of matters getting serious, and "bank breaks" can be excluded.

the money market, which has prevailed since the end of the first round. The second round was felt in all the banking houses, and some houses were compelled to throw out open offers. The market for the first round of securities can obtain accommodation at preferable quarters, and consequently more good than the first round, and outside prices have advanced or advanced.

Money Bulletin of Thursday says:

Market manifests unpreparedness, and capital is at bank and in the market. The demand for the first round of securities is the demand for first class paper. Offerings, however, very much reduced, owing to the demand for the first round of securities at bank and on the street from the opening of the first round of securities. In the market, the second class paper is in moderate demand, and the third round of securities is in moderate demand. The market is open with discount and capital refuse to give the first round of discount. The Exchange market is very much reduced, and limited at round, but the demand was little more than a demand. The market has been barely maintained repeat as follows:
